Katherine Chidley

Katherine Chidley was the first woman to take up her pen in the political and religious crisis of the mid-seventeenth century. Her pamphlets urge parliament to support the political and religious activist who dissented from the established church throughout the 1620s, 30s, and 40s supported the parliamentarian cause against the royalists.

As far as I can ascertain no major biography exists of two of the most important Leveller women Katherine Chidley and Elizabeth Lilburne.
