J. Rappaport, The Politics of Memory. Native historical interpretation in the Colombian Andes. Cambridge: CUP, 1990. Joanne Rappaport describes the ethnocentric approach to the study of native historical interpretation. Her book, The Politics of Memory: Native Historical Interpretation in the Colombian Andes, offers a comprehensive analysis of the ways in which native peoples in the Andes have constructed their own histories. Rappaport's work has been influential in shaping the field of Andean Studies, and her approach has been adopted by scholars across the globe. Her insights have shed light on the complex relationship between the indigenous communities and the European conquerors, and have provided a framework for understanding the ways in which memory and history are constructed and contested. Rappaport's work has been widely recognized, and she has been awarded numerous accolades for her contributions to the field of Andean Studies.
